

Nowadays, some parents put a lot of pressure on their children. What is the reason for this? Is this a positive or negative development for the children?

In this day and age, children have faced with a large number of tension which set up by their parent. From my viewpoint, I believe that this is a negative trend for them. This essay will examine the reason for this propensity and demonstrate to my argument.

To commence, there are a reason to prove that parent push offspring to successfull in accordance with wrong way. Children must be object who study with the larger strength, try to reach the excellent possible result, and attempt more than. Thanks to these way, children will own the platform to enter the leading university, lead to apply the employment in company when jumping to job market. Obviously, parents are individual who unable to approach with adequate education in the past due to war, financial condition, enter the life in early, so for they would not want this tobe repeated with their next generation. With the competition of employment and educational institute presently, the parents observe offsprings must try to do more, and own much advantage than peers.

Although parents put all things to better for children, but it increasing the likelihood of children's stress and reducing unbalance for them in life. They are only precdence outstanding achivement, overcome anyone while without private time or develop self-ability, social skill even those motiveive encouragment. For a long time, they will not only have a manifest of health, including sleepless, eating disorder, but also devise some behavior to escape itself about its. It is lead to prevent them from developing themself and life in the future.

In conclusion, installing a lot of pressure in children will create many consequence, such as health, psychology. I beleive that this activity must be removed and replaced by positive way.
